Thank you for your positive and constructive review. Your suggestion to include the potential for using soil peels for people with disabilities is great, we will add this to the manuscript. We appreciate your suggestions to clarify the site selection to non-experts, we will incorporate these into the revised manuscript and also process the very good text suggestions. Particularly the texture testing and landscape clues regarding soil wetness are good additions. We do not have moisture content measurements for the soil above the impermeable Bh horizon but since the water table was perched we can more explicitly mention that the soil was saturated. Finally, regarding working with land owners: we typically do not co-create lacquer peels with land owners but the two times we did there was a lot of interest which opened up new research possibilities too. We will include some words on this in the revised manuscript.
